Hi Folks – I've been emailing with Bill and Steve, and we think it makes sense to do two tours this year.

The June 27th tour would be for the general public, similar to what we've done in the past. Its designed to give people an overview of what's gone on in the basin and what's going on now. We have about 25 people currently signed up and almost none of them are mine remediation practitioners. We're planning to visit sites up at the top of Red Mtn. Pass, stop by the Elk Tunnel to talk about Good Samaritan issues, go to Gladstone and Red & Bonita, and stop by the Mayflower Tailing ponds down by the road.

The other tour would be in September and would be designed for a different audience - people who are really interested in the practical details of mine remediation (what has worked well, what hasn't, what adjustments needed to be made at particular sites, etc.). We would go to a different set of sites that we generally don't cover on the general public tour. We'd spend time in Prospect Gulch (about five projects there), maybe the Kansas City site, Elk Tunnel, Forest Queen, Mayday, Lakawanna, maybe we can get up on the Mayflower tailings ponds, etc.

If you have more thought, please let me know.

Hey Lisa, I forgot about possibly touring the Lakawanna site – let's evaluate it from that point of view next week when we're there.

Hi There.

Just wanted to give you a heads up that if you do keep your tour on June 27th, it will be on the same day as the Taste of Silverton which could be a wonderful thing to tie into. I can't remember what time it often starts..... sometime in the afternoon. Most restaraunts have an outdoor booth with a few small items to partake in, then you move onto the next booth. There is usually some live music off and on and a general festive mood. It finishes early evening before it gets cold and before people get too tipsy.

Happy planning.
